COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

Wednesday, inspectors from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency were here to view the sewage project. These people are who approve the grant money for the project. We were told we can expect funds from them soon, possibly in December.

We were notified recently, due to our participation in Regional Planning, we will receive an additional $30,000 grant money for a total participation by the State and Government of $55 toward the total cost of the plant itself and the interconnector lines. Neither the collector system, or any extensions we have made to service new customers, will receive any of these funds.

This part of the system will receive a grant of some in excess of $40,000 from the F. H. A. Supposedly that amount will be 50% of the cost of that part of the system.

TOURMALINE DISCOVERED ON PLUMBAGO MT. — TOTAL VALUE OF FIND IN DISPUTE

During the month of August two amateur rockhounds apparently stumbled on what is said to be the largest find of high quality tourmaline unearthed in this country since a similar strike in California during the 1880's. Located on Plumbago Mountain in Newry, near the Andover line, the find is on land of the International Paper Company.

The two rockhounds, Dale Sweet, owner of a Rumford business machine firm, and George Hartman Jr. of Portsmouth, N. H., together with Dean McCrillis of Roxbury have formed the "Plumbago Mining Company" and have reportedly negotiated a lease with the owners of the land. It is believed that security in the area has been tightened to discourage the curious.

The potential value of the gem find has been estimated at $1 million by Robert Kley of the Maine State Museum, a figure that Mr. McCrillis and his partners have termed as ridiculous. Other geologists have indicated a potential value of from 10 to 40% of Mr. Kley's figure. Tourmalines while not as valuable as diamonds and rubies, rank with aquamarine and high quality garnet as precious gems.

BETHEL MAN KILLS COY DOG IN SOUTH WOODSTOCK

A coydog, or Eastern Coyote, was trapped by Lloyd Lowell of Bethel on the Maynard Fleming property in South Woodstock recently.

The coydog, weighing 30 pounds and measuring four and a half feet, was caught in a buried trap. Mr. Lowell had been trying to trap a dog for a month, with about a dozen traps set.

When he came upon his catch, the animal was more interested in fighting the trap than he was in the trap.

Black and white feathers and a claw from a raptor were found in the animal's stomach, and the loss of sheep in the South Woodstock area has been attributed to the coydog.

The coydog was estimated to be about a year old and its pads are very similar to those of an ordinary dog. Its fangs curve inward, apparently to grip its prey better.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO "SHOW AND TELL" AT DECEMBER 7 MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Bethel Historical Society will be a "Show and Tell" about observance of Christmas one, and held as usual at 7:30 at the Casco Bank Community Room, Thursday, Dec. 7.

Any newcomers in this area are cordially welcomed to attend this social meeting, to which everyone is urged to bring something to show which was used in connection with Christmas in the past.

Suggestions for "Show and Tell" are Christmas recipes, utensils used in their preparation, decorative materials, for tree or house, Christmas poems or stories, Christmas gift wrappings, or typical Christmas gifts used prior to 75 years ago, when Christmas began to be observed but more simply than today. Christmas greeting cards would be of interest, too.

If anyone in town recalls community or church observances in Bethel, members would like to hear about them.

Refreshments will be served, and there will be only a brief business meeting. Every member is asked to bring a guest, too.

If anyone would like to give the gift packages of the Dr. Moses Mason house note paper, they may be obtained from Mrs. John T. Grover, Elm Street. These would be a most welcome Christmas gift for Bethel natives living away, as well as others.

TELSTAR PHYSICS PROGRAM GETS NATIONAL RECOGNITION

For the second year in a row, the physics program at Telstar Regional High School has placed among the top 10 high school programs in the United States. On the basis of a paper submitted to the American Association of Physics Teachers, Telstar has again been recognized for the innovative methods used in teaching physics.

Placing among the top 10 qualifies Telstar for further competition to determine the top five finalists. Last week, Dr. Paul Camp, chairman of the physics department at the University of Maine-Brunswick, gave prizes at Telstar examining the program. During his visit Dr. Camp obtained additional information from Tim Rensy and Jim Fiske (the physics teachers) as well as from several physics students and alumni. He examined student projects, methods of teaching, atmosphere of the science department and all other facets of the program which will support his report to the national committee.

Cindy works at the Casco Bank in Bethel. She files, types, works on machines, and does other general office work. Roger Conant is her boss. She works week days three hours a day, making a total of 15 hours a week, and enjoys her work.

Cindy does not find it difficult to keep up with her school work. Her favorite subjects are English and Home Economics. Business courses she has taken include typing, business machines, bookkeeping, and office skills.

She has previously worked at Gould Academy, and baby sat during summers.

Cindy is a member of the Co-op Advisory Committee. The committee is comprised of six Co-op students who meet with Mr. Dennis once a week to discuss the program. They air their grips and compliments, smooth out any problems which come up, and express their ideas to the other kids. The committee was organized to keep the program running smoothly.

Cindy is undecided about going on to school after graduation, but if she does, she says she will continue in the line of business. She lives with her brother and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wheeler, of Bethel, and enjoys skimming, shopping, and watching television.

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —

In an article today I read—"Going west on 219 about four miles from West Paris is Greenwood City, as the natives call it—just a handful of houses and a couple of intersections."

That "handful of houses" is a handful of homes. There is a difference. These have "a heap of living" with friendliness and kind neighbors.

The intersections? Miscounted. We have a richer experience which is the reward of those who see. For many there are who think for every one who sees.

The sweeping curves of the highways are long remembered by the tourists, displaying views of our ponds above which the wooded mountains tower, furnishing a magnificent background in fascinating patterns.

There is delicate beauty in the forest scenes with a perfection of soft light.

Any road may take you through stretches of winding and shaded highways well kept and lined with trees. One may follow old county roads which curve with wandering brooks and find clearings. History is here. Here representative men of Greenwood who have gone out into the world and many who have remained upon its native hills are proof in their character and mental ability of the value of the early training received in "the little red school house," and though not here offered the advantages of an advanced institution of learning, they laid the foundation of a life of usefulness and influence which does credit to these early families and the town of their birth.

The tinted fluff of the apple trees by the farm fences in spring gives perfume to every passerby. In the breeze there is a fluttering of petals and the branches seem rich with the future of promise.

For those who pause for a summer view, they find a charming blend of rural beauty. In July and August the hayfields are a waving mass of gold and white, the typical Maine dandelions, buttercups, and daisies.

Pretty shorelines curve gracefully where tree tops are etched against the blue of the sky, or maybe against a cloud in the upper world, rounded off on the top and looking as if the waves have fallen there.

Fresh breezes carry us the odors of pine or spruce which frame our views toward the distant horizon, rather than the smoke of factories. Our granite bridges are stately and tested by nature and I deem of the town of Greenwood, and green hills in our midst. Beyond there may be the sparkling rapids in the water and a mass of dark boulders racing about to complete a most effective view.

Here nature and manets present a beauty and charm forever changing with the growth and change.

Our Greenwood City is especially beautiful in the fall. It has an autumn glow which is very different from the color of the autumn leaves in the city of the future.

Then when winter comes we are met by a handful of houses for a time, and a few people.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors who came to our home for our 40th wedding anniversary. To Betty and Edith I say:

regardless of the kind of storm, our intersections are as passable as the "outside handful."

At night a warm light gleams its welcome from each home. Serenity is spread across the white wonderland with faint hints and gorgeous glows while our stars seem close enough to touch.

One can not look anywhere without seeing the mingling of lakes, forests and mountains which give Greenwood a lasting charm while Nature breathes of peace as day wanes.

But the morning star returns and its bright light comes again and a new day dawns on our "handful of houses." May it ever be so to those "who envision all the wonders hidden from the eye."

Having Thanksgiving together at "The Farm" were Mr. and Mrs. Leonas Holt, Ann and David, Bernard Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Morgan and Sharon Jordan, Locke Mills.

Arnell, Glenn, and Duane Hayes and families had Thanksgiving dinner with their parents and uncle at the Hayes Homestead on Saturday On Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hayes and Elmer Hayes were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Yates, Bethel.

Doris Hayes was in Portland on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Franze Mills, Shapleigh, and Mrs. Bertha Joyce and son, Stillman, of North Haven, were Ray and Ann Holt were in Portland on Friday.

Thanksgiving Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Millett were Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Oldham, West Peru, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Lawrence, West Paris. On Friday as supper guests they had Mr. and Mrs. James Coffin and Jeffrey Coffin.
